This may be called an opinion, or an impression, it matters not which, the result is the same, provided the impression is such as to require testimony for its removal. The point contemplated by the law and the rules of courts in fixing the standard of qualifications for jurors, is simply to procure men whose minds are so free from prejudice, for or against the accused, that no testimony will be required to remove the bias. There is no doubt about the correctis entitled to a jury who have not preness of this principle. The prisoner judged his case. And yet, under the present rule, which makes men incompetent for jurors whose minds have been affected by published reports to a degree which would require evidence to remove such imressions, opinions or convictions, we do not see how courts can do otherhave been constant readers of daily papers. Some journals are disposed to regard the rulings of courts upon this subject as absurd, but a little reflection will satisfy any person of the dangers which must attend the adoption of a different course. It would seem hard to put a man upon trial for his life before a jury whose minds were prejudiced against him to such an extent that testimony would be required to free them from all embarrassment and give the prisoner an

Can this be paralleled in any other State in the South save South Carolina or Louisiana, where the cold-blooded lenders of this cormorant party still fatten upon the unfortunate tax-payers? And yet there are journalists and politicians who would increase the enormous taxation under which we groan in order that eight or ten million dollars of past due interest ecumulate may be met now and during the next two years. Not content with 60 cents on the $100, they would make It $4 80, and bankrupt a whole population in order that the cormorant bond ring in New York may get 'six per cent, on bonds for which they paid only thirty-five to fifty cents on the dollar.
